Dear Friend,

I see that my letter to the "Manchester Guardian" about Dr. Germani has been reproduced in Paris. I am anxious to get the matter taken up by the medical profession here, and to do so, I have written to the various medical journals. The Editor of "The Lancet" has replied very kindly, but he is afraid that my statement that there is no adequate medical attention on Ponza will be officially contradicted, and he wishes to arm himself with further information. Please tell me anything you can about this, with the most precise details that you have.

If you would be so kind as to reply by air mail, that would facilitate matters.

Yours sincerely,

E. Maria Cantelmo
